

Share Your Thoughts – Creekside Park Design

Last week the City of Vancouver unveiled the latest design of the Creekside Park extension. This is a community amenity we have been waiting for since 1990. While the new design includes some attractive features, our main concern is the significant loss of park land to Concord Pacific, and the relocation of the park away from the water.

The original configuration located Concord's 6C parcel west of Carrall Street. You will note that the entire Concord Presentation Centre is located on future park land.

The new design still has Concord west of Carrall Street, however Carrall Street has been moved to the east such that the net result is a smaller park and less access to the water. You will note that most of the Concord Presentation Centre is now shown as on Concord land.

The most recent park design gives Concord Pacific more waterfront property to build residential towers, while shifting the Creekside Park extension to the area under the Skytrain line and next to the new six-lane Pacific Ave.

The original development plan for Creekside Park promised in 1990 was a contiguous east-west park alignment. Currently, the City of Vancouver is proposing a north-south alignment to the park, thus moving the park further away from the waterfront.

In the best interest of Vancouverites, there should be no residential development east of the present day Carrall Street Greenway as originally proposed. We only have one opportunity to get this park right. Let's make sure we do.
